Stay tuned for more tour dates coming soon...

Read on to delve into the history and achievements of Anvision...

Anvision is the one of the top polish melodic prog metal bands founded in 2007 by guitarist Greg Ziolk, drummer Marcin "Larz" Duchnik and the first vocalist Marcin Gadek. The first band line up was completed by keyboardist Andrzej Niewiedomski and bassist Artur Serwin.

In 2010 they released the first EP titled "Eyes Wide Shut" and placed one song " Why Shouldn't I Get To Heaven" on compilation album "Downtown Metal vol. 8" which has been released in USA, Canada and Mexico.

In 2011 new musicians joined the band. Vocalist Marek "MarQus" Ostrowski and Keyboardist Lukas Piwowonski.

In 2012 AnVision released their first long – play album titled "AstralPhase". The album has been noticed and appreciated by critics and fans alike, and is receiving excellent reviews from around the world.

In 2013 Anvision changed the line up again. Bassist Karol "Karaluz" Wadowski and Keyboardist Waldemar "Valdi" Rozanski" joined the band.

For the last few years, the band played numerous concerts, loudly applauded by the audience.

In the beginning of 2014 AnVision have started to work over their next album and they have released the first single from it "Season Of The Witches".

In the February 2015 AnVision released the next single "I'm Gone Away" to which the video has been made by Pawel Skotarski.

In May 2015 AnVision performed on "Prog The Castle Festival" in Heidelberg, Germany. The second AnVision's long-play album "New World" was released 13 May 2016.

In February 2017 AnVision was supporting Tarja Turunen (ex Nightwish) during the european tour including Hungary, Romania, Greece, Bulgaria and Turkey.

In October 2017 AnVision performed on "Maximum Rock Festival" in Bucharest, Romania.

In 2018 AnVision started to work over another Lp.

First recordings for the new album were made at AnVision's own studio in March 2019.

The date of premiere AnVision's third long-play album titled "Love & Hate" has been planned for the beginning of 2020.
